Get your ball fix with Metro's guide to meatball madness

We like big balls and we cannot lie – meatballs that is. These delicious spheres of meat are one of our favorite time-tested snacks. Who has the biggest and the best balls in New York? We went balls to the wall in our search of the city's most coveted ballers. Let's get the ball rolling, shall we? (And yes, these ball puns will continue.)

Stanton Social 99 Stanton St., 212-995-0099

If you wake up with balls on the brain, head straight to Stanton Social, where old school meatballs grace the brunch menu. Bring the old ball-and-chain with you while you're at it, because the double order of traditional meatballs can easily be shared among two. These pork, veal and ground Wagyu beef balls are the perfect balance of traditional and modern-style balls, with a little surprise on top: ricotta-stuffed manicotti.
